

American National Bank Will Build New Office in Galva

For Immediate Release: July 14, 2008

Galva, Iowa -- Since American National Bank opened in 1995, Galva has been an important part of their growth and success. "The time has come for us to update and build a new facility to better serve our customers," remarked Robert L. Butcher, president of American National Bank. "This project signals our continuing commitment to this community and providing complete banking services."

The new bank building will be located on Main Street just south of the elevator on the corner lot. The modern facility will be more convenient as a one story, handicapped accessible building with more office space, a conference room, and the ability to accommodate more staff when needed. Some of the new features American National Bank customers will appreciate are a drive-up window, drive-up ATM, and drive-up night depository.

"We value all of our customers at the Galva location and are pleased to report business at this branch has grown over the years," Butcher stated. "Our staff at Galva has grown to five full-time people with Marty Boyle serving as branch manager for more than 10 years."

Plans for the new bank will be finalized in the next 30 to 60 days. American National Bank intends to break ground in September and have the new building enclosed so progress can still be made over the winter. Completion is expected in the spring of 2009.

"American National Bank believes in supporting the communities we serve and being good neighbors. We look forward to the building process in Galva and invite you to watch our progress," Butcher concluded.

American National Bank has locations in Holstein, Merville, Kingsley, Pierson, and Sac City as well as Galva.
